

Supplemental figure 4: Comparison of hematocrit ratios, that were measured at 31.5°C, between low- (red) and high-latitudinal (blue) populations. No significant difference was observed between the different latitudes ($p = 0.058$). Solid (low-latitude) and dashed (high-latitude) lines represent 95% confidence intervals.